BOWLER'S PARTY RETURNED.

Ideal Tour of Thirty Days Brimful of Sight Seeing.

Mr. E. C. Bowler returned last Wednesday with his party of sight-seers which have been making a tour of the continent during the past thirty days. The party, consisting of 117 people, started on July 5 with special train from Montreal.

The fact that they had a special train from start to finish made it possible to get very much out of the tour which they could not have otherwise had. They were enabled to stop at their liking, and thus were able to include very many interesting points along the line which would have been omitted had they been confined to regular train service. At many of those points along the line such as San Bernardino, Riverside, Pomona, and Lodi, Cal., entertainment was given by the citizens, which included carriage drives, electric rides, automobile rides, etc.

Various side trips were taken among the Rockies in the State of Colorado, all of which were magnificent beyond description. The tour was characterized by one and all as the "ideal tour of a lifetime," and all were of the opinion that they did not have to go across the water in order to see sights worth seeing. One lady of the party who had taken several trips to Europe, touring the Alps more than once, remarked upon several occasions while we were on our Rocky Mountain side trips, that she had never seen anything in the Alps which compared with what she saw in Colorado.

Rev. H. F. Moulton of Biddeford was a member of our party, and since his return we have noticed a published interview which the editor of the Biddeford Record had with him upon his return. We take pleasure in giving an extract of that interview herewith.

Rev. Herbert F. Moulton, pastor of the First Universalist church, returned from California Wednesday evening after a trip of about 12,000 miles. He left the city July 5 and since this time he has been in 21 States and has visited scores of places of much interest and importance on our continent.

The western trip was made by the way of Denver, the Rockies and southern California. Then the party went up the Pacific coast to Portland, Oregon, and returned by the way of Tacoma, Spokane, St. Paul and Chicago.

This party of which Mr. Moulton was a member, numbered about 120 people and was personally conducted by E. C. Bowler of Bethel. The party had a special train all the way from Montreal, Canada, and Mr. Moulton says that by the means of this special train the party was able to do in a month's time what would have taken two months of time if one had to wait for regular trains.

There are three kinds of people in the world—the wills, the won'ts, and the can'ts. The first accomplish everything; the second, oppose everything; the third, fail in everything.

"We had no waits," said Mr. Moulton this morning. "When we had done a place, our train was ready to take us to the next place on a special schedule. Most of our sleeping was done in our four tourist sleepers, and most of our meals were taken in our dining car. All this saved us, hours, and in some cases, days of time and we were able to see and enjoy so much more."

Mr. Moulton in speaking of Mr. Bowler, who conducted the party, said, "He did all and much more than he agreed, and there was not a single extra charge for which we had not been told before we started. Our party looked upon him as an able and ideal conductor. We were all greatly pleased with his interest in us and the service that he gave on the train and at hotels." Mr. Bowler is to leave with another party the last of this month.

Mr. Moulton was delighted with his trip and he said to-day: "If I could not repeat the trip, I would not part with what I have seen and learned for many thousands of dollars. This is a great country. No country is like it in variety of soil and climate. We can raise all the foods useful for mankind. We can snowball on Pike's Peak in July, and in less than four hours pick fruit and flowers by the car load in the vicinity of Colorado Springs. No American should see Europe until he has crossed our continent."

"Here in America we have things to see and enjoy that no European country can show us. Doubtless it is popular to go to Europe. It is quite the thing to do, don't you know, but I think it is our duty to see America first, to know something about our great distances, to see our marvelous resources and to learn what we are as a nation."

"Travel educates. It is as good for the common man as for the millionaire. In fact, I think that the man of small means gets more out of travel than the man of large means. In our party there was a school janitor, a man of small salary, but he had traveled more than many a man with his thousands."

"I asked him how he did it and this was his reply: 'I first pay all my bills every month and then I divide the balance of my salary into two parts. I put one into my pocket for spending money and the other I put into the bank as a fund from which I draw every summer for a month of travel.' This school janitor was one of the best informed and interesting men in our party. Even the school teachers in his building often asked him questions about the subjects which they were teaching from books, not from real life."

"My advice to all is save, even if only in small ways, for travel, but above all see this great continent of ours before going to Europe. In our party there was an English woman. She had just come to visit in Canada. She has traveled much in Europe, but our trip was a series of marvels to her, she said to me. 'You have here in America many things that one will not see in Europe. Sir, you are wise in seeing your own land first.'"

New Drug Business in Bethel.
Mr. Addison B. Smith of Biddeford has leased the drug store recently occupied by E. E. Cross, and will open store to the drug business in about three weeks.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of the Chicago College of Pharmacy, Chicago, Ill., and is a registered druggist in the State of Illinois, and also in the State of Maine. He has been in the business ten years, and comes well recommended as a young man of sound business ability and sterling character.

It is just such young men as this that Bethel is in need of, and we are glad to welcome Mr. Smith to our town. He assures us that he will keep a clean up-to-date drug store, and will do anything in his power to please and accommodate the public, and we predict for him a successful business.

Fountain Pen Habit.

One who has not acquired this useful habit can not realize the convenience of these handy articles. One who has had good a fountain pen can hardly get along without it. The vast difference in pens renders it hard for the average person to pick out a good one that suits their hand. Come in and let me tell you the advantage of the Parker pen, and you have the privilege of trying every pen in my large stock if you wish, so to be sure you have one to suit you.

Annual Fair.

The Ladies' Club of the Congregational Society announce their annual Mid Summer Fair to be held in Garland Chapel, Thursday afternoon and evening, August 17.

To the patrons who have so generously responded year after year, no explanation is necessary; the magic word fair tells the story, but all are most cordially invited to come in during the afternoon and examine the tables well supplied with fancy and useful articles. The female brain is fertile in ideas and the fingers are deft to work, and no doubt many new fancy articles will be found on these tables. The candy table is sure to be well provided for, and ice cream and cake will be for sale afternoon and evening.

At six o'clock supper will be served in the dining room and those who have already tested the culinary skill of the ladies, will certainly want to come to supper, and others will want to prove the statement that "The Fair Suppers served by Bethel ladies are never excelled and seldom equaled." Supper 25 cents.

All are cordially invited to come in and it will be no trouble to show the goods, whether one wishes to purchase or not." Remember, Aug. 17, afternoon and evening, Garland Chapel. Watch for posters.

CONCERNING CELLAR DOORS.

From the Old Time Door of Wood to Newest of Galvanized Steel.
Time was when cellar doors were all made of wood with iron strap hinges, each complete door consisting of a pair of wooden flap doors closing in the middle, to be thrown back on either side when the door was opened. A weather strip was nailed along the edge of one of these flaps.

Outside the houses, and in fact in many other places, such cellar doors were often set at an incline from the building, so that they would the better shed water; and there were the traditional cellar doors down which children loved to slide, as they still do, for that matter, wherever such cellar doors are found.

Cellar doors, either flat or inclined, are still to be found in countless numbers everywhere, and in cities as well as in the country. But along much traveled business thoroughfares in cities, wooden cellar doors were soon worn away and broken under the incessant scraping and trampling of many thousands of feet, and so in such situations wooden cellar doors were long ago largely supplanted by cellar doors of iron, these not inclined but set level with the sidewalk, so that they would form no impediment to travel.

These were a wide departure from the old time wooden cellar door, but they have now been long familiar in such localities, and for a time it must have seemed, if anybody ever gave them a thought, that in them had been reached the limit in cellar door construction. But the really modern city cellar door is to them what they were to the ancient cellar door of wood.

The newest city cellar door designed for use in crowded streets, one introduced within recent years, is built of steel, and galvanized, and hung on heavy brass hinges. Of rigid construction in its own parts, and shutting into a rigid frame, this cellar door when closed is as firm a support to the feet as the surrounding sidewalk in which it is set, while the galvanizing of the door and the hanging of its parts on brass hinges preserve the door from rust and help to make it practically indestructible.—New York Sun.

Has a Trade For Any Time of Day.
The thriftest man in the United States lives in Louisville. He has trades that fit any climate, season or time of the day. As an example of his wonderful versatility, a friend tells the following story of an average day in the life of this strenuous man:

One morning last week he started out with a rug to sell on commission for an installment house. He sold the rug, and then came back and took out a clock, which he also disposed of. About noon he was called by an undertaker to embalm a body, which he did. Another undertaker sent for him to drive a hearse to the cemetery, and after he had disposed of this errand satisfactorily he preached a short sermon at the grave.

He drove the hearse back to town and filled in the afternoon for a candymaker who was taken suddenly ill.

In the evening he worked from 6 to 8 o'clock in a barber shop, and from that hour until midnight set type on a daily newspaper.

Hindoo Woman's Nose Key.
"It is considered an insult and extremely indecous in India to refer to a woman's nose ring, but so many ask me, 'What is that flower they hold in the mouth?' that I must tell you I shouldn't," says Edmund Russell.

"It is the badge of wifehood, even more sacred than our wedding ring—set always with the costliest and most beautiful jewels a woman possesses and the last she will part with. A ruby with two pearls is the favorite as symbolizing a heart between two guardians of purity."

"This is something going out of fashion under English influence; the Somaji ladies and Zoroastrian sisters do not wear them, but every orthodox Hindoo woman has her pak-chal, or 'nose key,' as it is called, usually two, one of precious jewels and costly pearls, the other a little plain gold safety pin, which is slipped in just as the great circle is being drawn out, for the nose must never for a moment be left free."—Everybody's Magazine.

Tuberculosis in Germany.
According to recently published statistics compiled by the Berlin Imperial Bureau tuberculosis is rapidly decreasing in Germany. In cities having more than 15,000 inhabitants the deaths from tuberculosis per 100,000 in the years between 1877 and 1881 were 357. This rate has gradually diminished until in the four years between 1897 and 1901 tuberculosis showed a mortality of only 213 per 100,000.

Bearded Women.
Two German doctors have been looking into the question of bearded women, and they have discovered that out of every 1,000 sane females, 290 are bearded. Of these 230 have only slight down, 40 have a very visible beard, and 10 are unmistakably adorned with this hirsute appendage. Out of 1,000 insane women examined, 481 had slight beards, while fifty-six had beards well grown.—Reynold's Newspaper.

London's Social Haven.
London has always been the social haven of the foreigners of mediocre position but ambitious aspirations. Satirized years ago by Thackeray, it is even more evident today, that with gold and a pleasant manner any inoffensive and prepossessing foreigner can buy himself social toleration in what is commonly called the "upper circles."—Ladies' Field.

SPIES OF RUSSIA.

A Subtle System That Has Ramifications in Every Big City.
Russia is pre-eminently the land of spies, says Vance Thompson in Success Magazine. Democratic and socialistic France has raised the spy system to a state function, but in Russia it is the very soul of the state. In Moscow, in the streets, agents of the police are stationed every five hundred yards; in addition, secret agents watch the houses day and night—one being allotted to every four houses; and in every house is another spy, the porter. Go where you will you are never out of the watchful eye of the police. You brush against spies in your hotel, as in the theatres; in a restaurant, as in the drawing-room of a friend.

It is ridiculously easy to recognize those you meet in the fashionable resorts. They have evidently been instructed to disguise themselves as gentlemen, and for one of them the liver of a gentleman is a frock coat, a silk hat, and, always—by rain or sunlight—an umbrella. The famous third police! A stranger might fancy that, in an open cab—talking French or English to his friend—he would at least be safe from surveillance; but his friend will touch him signally and speak of the weather. The fat cabbie on the box, somnolent, with white hair and good paternal eyes, may be a spy, more skilled in the languages than the traveling stranger; and, if the cabman has been found loitering near the great clubs, the hotels or the embassies, the chances are strong that he is a subtle police than that of the third section—the akhrana, which has its ramifications in every capital in Europe and America—completes this great system of espionage. Its mesh is over every man in Russia; no one goes unwatched—save only old Count Tolstoy.

City Dwellings.
There are 250,000 dwelling houses in the five boroughs of the City of New York, a dwelling house being officially described as a place in which one or more persons regularly sleep, and which has accommodations for their residence. After New York in size of population comes Chicago, but not in the number of dwellings. Chicago has 190,000 dwellings; Philadelphia, a less populous city, has 245,000, nearly as many as New York.

There are 32,000 dwelling houses in the city of St. Louis, 39,000 in Baltimore, 66,000 in Boston, 52,000 in New Orleans, 52,000 in Detroit, 53,000 in San Francisco, 50,000 in Washington, 45,000 in Milwaukee, 30,000 in Newark, 50,000 in Buffalo, 55,000 in Cleveland, 35,000 in Louisville, 40,000 in Cincinnati, 30,000 in Minneapolis, 50,000 in Pittsburgh, and 15,000 in New Haven.

The city of London has 600,000 houses, which is more than double the number in New York, though the population of London is less than double that of this city. Paris has 100,000 houses, less than half this number in New York, though Paris has a population of 2,500,000, while the population of New York is 1,000,000 greater. London has, on an average, seven residents to each house; Paris has twenty-five and New York has between ten and eleven. New York is more thickly populated than London and less thickly populated than Paris, if the number of residents of a house be accepted as the measure of the density of population. Among American cities, Philadelphia is the most sparsely populated and Boston the most thickly settled.—New York Sun.

Law Lords and Ladies.

Ever since King James I. of England and VI. of Scotland gave the judges of the Court of Session the title of "lord," with the remark "I'll mak the carles lords, but I'll no mak the carlines laddies," the wives of Scottish law lords have been plain "Mrs." When a new judge received his previous name this did not matter so very much. It was then a case of—let us say—Lord Macgregor of Craigellachie and Mrs. Macgregor. But when a judge took the title of his estate things were different. It was then Lord Craigellachie and Mrs. Macgregor, a combination of names that might easily lead to circumstances more awkward than pleasant. Now, however, "by his Majesty's command," the wife of a judge of the Court of Session will be "lady," and thus another injustice to Scotland is removed.—Westminster Gazette.

Beating of Dead Hearts.

Hearts of cold-blooded animals will beat for a comparatively long time after death or removal from the body (if kept cold and moist,) because of powerful internal collections of nerves known as ganglia, whose automatic impulses cause the regular contractions of the muscles. Similar ganglia exist in man and other warm-blooded animals, but their action is less prolonged. Scientists have ascertained that a turtle's heart will beat after removal if put in a piece of glass, kept cool and moist and covered with a bell-jar. I believe it has been known to beat thirty-six or even forty-eight hours; twelve or fourteen hours is a common record.—St. Nicholas.

World's Highest Buildings.

The ten highest buildings in the world are the Eiffel Tower, Paris, 984 feet high; the Washington Monument, 555 feet; City Building, Philadelphia, 535 feet; Cathedral of Cologne, 511 feet; Cathedral at Strasburg, 466 feet; the chimney of the St. Rollox Chemical Works, Glasgow, 455½ feet; St. Martin's Church, Landshut, Germany, 454 feet; St. Stephen's, Vienna, 435 feet; the Great Pyramid, 460 feet; and St. Peter's, Rome, 448 feet.—Boston Globe.

WITH THE JAPANESE ARMY.

Some of the Causes Which Helped on Success in the Field.

In the advance of the Japanese army down the peninsula, telephone linesmen, bearing on their shoulders coils of thin copper wire, not much larger and of no more weight than a pack-thread, followed through the kaoling fields on each side of the commander. The moment he stopped, a table was procured, a receiver was snapped on the wire and a telegrapher stood ready. More remarkable was the advance of the telephone into the contested redoubt of the Eternal Dragon, where a station was placed and operated for four months, with the Russians holding trenches only forty meters distant and on three sides. At this station, along the front of which twenty men a day were slain by sharpshooters, mail was delivered every time that a transport arrived, which was almost daily. Men on the firing line received postal cards from their sweethearts and mother an hour before death.

Telephone and postoffice followed the flag; the Red Cross preceded it. The medical corps came, not in the wags of the army, but close on the heels of the pioneers. Before even the infantrymen entered a Chinese village it was explored, the water of its wells analyzed, its houses tested for bacteria and the lines of encampment laid down. This unusual sanitation is looked upon by surgical authorities as perhaps the chief cause of Japanese success.—Century.

Uses of Lemons.

Gargle a bad sore throat with a strong solution of lemon juice and water.

The juice of half a lemon in a cup of black coffee without any sugar will cure sick headache.

Lemon juice and salt will remove iron rust.

A strong unsweetened lemon-ade taken before breakfast will prevent and cure a bilious attack.

Lemon juice added to milk until it curds and these curds then bound up in parts swollen from rheumatism will bring relief.

Lemon juice mixed very thick with sugar will relieve that tickling cough that is so annoying.

A hot lemonade taken before going to bed will cure a cold on the lungs.

A cloth saturated in lemon juice and bound about a cut or wound will stop its bleeding.

Lemon juice added to fruit juices that do not jell readily, such as cherry, strawberry, etc., will cause them to jell.—Indianaapolis Sentinel.

Dog Carries Shingles.

James Dell, a carpenter living in Netcong, has an ordinary yellow dog of the hybrid variety. The dog's pedigree notwithstanding, Mr. Dell thinks a great deal of him and has spent a lot of time teaching the dog to perform tricks. During the winter it occurred to Mr. Dell that if he could teach the dog to carry shingles up a ladder to the roof of a house, the dog would be a valuable assistant when spring work began.

The dog took to the idea as if it were second nature, and now that the season has actually begun he is working with Mr. Dell nearly every day. People in that vicinity are astonished at the sight of a dog running up a ladder with a big mouthful of shingles, and then returning to the ground for another load.

The Difference.

Here are tables of crime in which the meaning is the same but the description different:

THEFT.
Rich woman, kleptomaniac.
Rich man, shortage.

DRUNKENNESS.
Rich man, debility or heart failure.
Well-to-do man, alcoholicism.

IN WALL STREET.
Poor man, delirium tremens.
Rich man, legitimate speculation.

Smoke and Beauty.
Well-to-do man, dabbbling in stocks.
Poor man, gambling.

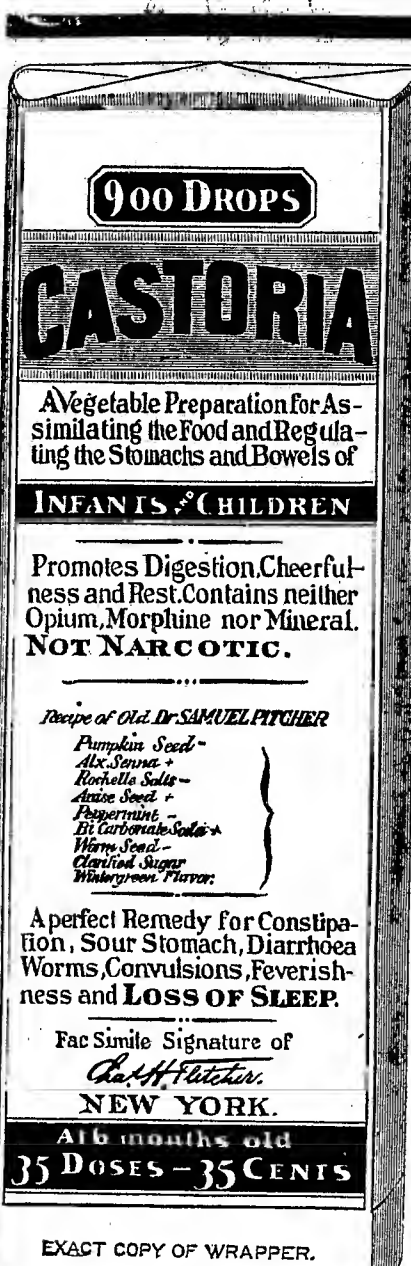

Smoke and Beauty.
Here is a theory—London smoke is a tonic. Is the sufferer that finds its way via smoky chimneys into the air of London the secret of the London complexion? Over and over again it is remarked how much finer is the town than the country complexion. Put a London girl beside a country girl, and ten chances to one the London girl's complexion is the better.—Black and White.

Wedding Agencies.

The matrimonial agent does not thrive in Argentina. He first has to pay for a license, then he is made to disburse a tax on successful results, at so much per couple. Should any connubial contract turn out an utter failure, the agent may be arrested and sent to prison for not exercising needful care while negotiating the union of two of his clients.—Exchange.

Sultan's Love of the Violin.

The Sultan of Turkey has few recreations, but if there is one thing that he likes more than another, it is music. He shows some ability at the piano, but his favorite instrument is the violin. He has a son who shows promise of developing into a really brilliant violinist, and he is at great pains to see that the boy has the best tuition possible.—London Exchange.

"Heart Burn"

An Early Form of Dyspepsia
But It is a Warning That Should Be Heeded.

Dear Sirs:—

January 6, 1904.

My husband was troubled with heart
burn and could find no relief until a friend advised him to take your "L.
F." Atwood's Bitters.

Since taking it he is entirely cured.

Gratefully yours,
MRS. MELISSA MERCHANT,

FOR SALE.

Shelburne Spring House, Shelburne, N. H.

The house is near Depot, Post Office and Telegraph Office. In good situation to accommodate White Mountain Tourists.
Families and Parties wishing a quiet pleasant place to spend their vacation will find this all they desire. It is surrounded with beautiful mountain scenery at the base of Mount Winthrop within easy access of Mount Washington and the Presidential groups of the White Mountains.

From Mount Winthrop you get a beautiful view of the valley of the big Androscoggin River shedding its silver light far into the Wilds of Maine. Then, turning your eyes, you look upon Mounts Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Madison, and many smaller mountains which skirt the valley below.
There are hundreds of views which attract and charm the eye of the Tourist. The streams abound with fish and the forest with game.

A good livery connected with the house.
The ride from Bethel to Shelburne is delightful, passing through one of the most beautiful and charming sections in New England.

House newly furnished, rooms large and airy. Connecting rooms if wanted. Large farm in connection with house from which tables are supplied; also fruit and berries of all kinds.

SHELBURNE SPRING.

From which the house takes its name
comes out of mountain about one thousand feet above the house. The water was analyzed the past year by Prof. Frank L. Bartlett, State Assayer of Maine, who pronounced it a wonderful spring of water; he says in conclusion, "In his analysis, 'The value of this water consists in its most remarkable purity, being almost as pure as distilled water.'

This is one of the most desirable pieces of hotel property in New England, and can be had at a reasonable price, and on easy terms.

Was Wasting Away.

"I had been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years," writes Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo. "I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound

Taken with Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Little-port was taken suddenly ill Thursday night, with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day.
The incident speaks quite highly of
Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader,

One of the notable houses in Oxford county, says an exchange, is the one-story Allen house in Hebron,
which is said to be one of the oldest in the country. It is historic for two reasons. At this very house
the greater part of the flooring timbers for the original Bowery Theatre
in New York city were hewn and framed. Professor Oscar Allen, the first American to know nickel alloy
and the first to introduce nickel plating in this country; was born and brought up on this farm. The timbers for the Bowery Theatre were cut in the forests around Hebron,
and were taken to the house to be hewn and framed.

DAIRY AND CREAMERY

WORKING BUTTER TWICE.

This Method Eliminates Mottling
and Streaking.

The best makers prefer to work butter twice. The first time it is worked just enough to mix the salt.
Then for four or six hours it is left on the worker, or in some other place, where the temperature is
from sixty to sixty-five degrees F., so that the butter will remain in the right condition to work well. This will give time for the salt to dissolve. Then it should be worked just enough to obliterate the streaks and mottles. This second working expels some more of the water, for the salt has had time to draw the moisture together in drops and it is world old, thus making a drier butter containing from eighty-five to eighty-seven per cent. of butter fat.
Such butter will be firmer and better and more satisfactory to the consumer than it usually is when worked but once. Immediately after the butter is worked it should be packed in neat, clean packages, or put up in such form as is required
by the market to which it is to be sent.

Profit in Soiling Crops.

There may be some extra labor in cutting and feeding green stuff, but then there is labor in any good method of making money. Feeding soiling crops to dairy cows is a money making way of business.

Much has been said in these columns about the importance to farmers, particularly those who keep cows, of growing soiling crops, but it is a point which cannot be too strongly emphasized. The advantages of soiling crops, particularly on high priced land, are so great that every dairymen should carefully study the question with a view
to adopting this system.

Carefully conducted experiments show that by feeding cows in the barn wholly on green crops, from two to five times as much milk as can be produced from an acre as from pasturing the same piece of land. Soiling crops come in when pastures are drying up, and for this reason alone are invaluable. A large number of cows can be kept on a given area, and the productiveness of the land can be more rapidly increased perhaps by this method than any other. In addition, the saving of manure and its application to the best advantage is not an inconsiderate gain in this method.

Utility of Nitrate of Soda.

Writing from personal experience
we advise the use of nitrate of soda on all garden crops that are not making satisfactory growth at any time during the season. A teaspoonful pulverized and applied
around cabbage or cauliflower plants
induces very rapid growth, or a few quarts scattered between the rows of sweet corn will surprise you with its results in increased growth over
that not so treated.

We never have had plants injured
by it, but there is some danger, if it is applied in quantity too near the stalk. It had no beneficial effect on sweet potatoes with us, but on all other garden and field crops it has far exceeded most sanguine expectations.—Farmer's Voice.

Most Calves Overfed.

More calves suffer from overfeeding than from scant diet. Keep the calf a little hungry and eager for more rather than fill it to distention.
The endeavor should be to prevent the beginning of indigestion, which leads to scouring and perhaps fatal
diarrhea. Nothing causes indigestion sooner than overfeeding or irregularity in the quantity, time and temperature of the milk, especially while the calf is young. Absolute cleanliness about the feeding vessels is of course essential with frequent scalding and it is on this score
more than any other thing that so many of our Colorado people are having trouble with their calves.

Cold Storage Fruits.

Now that the bureau of chemistry
of the department of agriculture has scientifically demonstrated the fact that sulphuric and boric acids as food preservatives are injurious to health, it will turn its attention to the methods of preservation through the medium of cold storage or sterilization. Many fruits, meats, etc.,
are now kept in this way for years,
and it is thought that the food deteriorates after a certain time, no matter what means are adopted to preserve it, even if it does not develop ptomaines or other dangerous qualities.

The Guernsey Cow.

The Guernsey breed has never been very popular in this country
for some reason although better animals can scarcely be found. Grade heifers have yielded as much as 7,602 pounds of milk at the age of three years. The butter fat averaged more than four per cent.

How to Save the Milk.

Take the calves away from the cows and save the milk. What is the use of keeping a cow for a whole year and getting nothing out of her
but a yearling that sells for about two cents a pound. Twenty-five cent
butter fat converted into two cent
steer meat is not progressing
in the right direction.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your
water and let it stand twenty-four hours;
a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also
convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, cures every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing
it, or bad effects following use of liquor,
wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant
necessity of being compelled to go often
during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.
If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.
You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery
and a book that tells
more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail.

STATE NEWS.

Booth Tarkington, the writer, is at the Old Fort Inn at Kennebunkport.

Since its organization in 1890 the Village Improvement society at Bar Harbor has spent $30,000 in helping along the work nature did there.

There is to be a fair in Bangor this year, and the managers promise "the greatest agricultural fair ever held in Maine." The dates are August 29, 30, 31 and Sept. 1. Fine horses and good racing every day.

Machiasport is having hard luck. The town is unable to find a man in town to act as tax collector and has about decided to call on the sheriff to perform this duty, the natives not appearing to want the job.

Loring, Short & Harmon of Portland have a unique post card that makes a pretty souvenir for Maine people as well as summer visitors to send away to friends. The card on the reverse side bears the official State of Maine seal in colors and also a fine picture of Hon. William T. Cobb, governor of Maine.

The Androscoggin river, which was flooded by the recent rains, has resumed its normal condition, and it has been found that the damage to the coffer dam used in connection with the work of construction of the new paper mill at Livermore Falls is not so bad as supposed. The loss to the contractors is only about $1,000.

Gen. J. L. Chamberlain is again actively interested in the proposed monument to Rev. Elijah Kellogg. He said Wednesday morning: "We have money enough but we are divided on one point. Some would like an elaborate monument and a bust of Kellogg, while I still hold that we ought to have his big rock mounted suitably inscribed. He said that whenever he felt discouraged he went to his lot and prayed under the big rock. I think the others will come around to my way of thinking."

Ex-Governor Garcelon has been having this summer as usual. His 93 years do not trouble him one bit and the four acre field in Lewiston, owned by his daughter, Mrs. Edith Dennis of Medford, Mass., has been cut and gathered by him. The old patriarch has also hoed an acre and a half of the finest corn that can be found in all Maine. He still answers all calls for medical assistance and beyond doubt is the oldest living practitioner in New England if not in all America to-day.—Portland Express.

Peculiar Disappearance.

J. D. Runyan, of Buttrickville, O., laid the peculiar disappearance of his painful symptoms, of indigestion and biliousness, to Dr. King's New Life Pills. He says: "They are a perfect remedy, for dizziness, sour stomach, headache, constipation, etc." Guaranteed at all drug stores, price 25 cents.

ANOTHER IDEAL TOUR.

To the Pacific Coast and the Lewis & Clark Expedition.

On August 28th, the second and last of Bowler's personally conducted tours to the Pacific Coast will start from Portland and Boston, the two sections joining in Montreal, where a Special Train will be taken for the entire journey. This will indeed be a "trip of a life time," as has been declared by the entire party which started with Mr. Bowler on July 5th. The members of that party cannot say enough as to the generous treatment received. The excellent Dining Car Service was much appreciated, the high class hotels used fully enjoyed, and the excellent routes and side trips called for pronounced enthusiasm from one and all. All are loud in their praises of the service which they received and declare that they will always recommend Bowler's Tours as the "Ideal Tours." You may verify this statement by consulting any one of the July party. Any interested in the August tour should make their reservations at once.

Resolutions.

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father has called our brother to his Heavenly home,

Resolved: That in the death of Leander G. Grover the Bethel Grange has lost an honored member, one who was always ready to help in every possible way; and while we mourn our loss we would bow to Our Father's will.

Resolved: That Bethel Grange extend to the bereaved family, their deepest sympathy, and commend them to the love that "doeth all things well."

Resolved: That our charter be draped in mourning thirty days.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Grange, published in the Bethel News, and sent to the bereaved family.

Obituary.

Nellie May, wife of Mr. Davis Lovejoy, passed away at her home on Main street, Aug. 7, after a long illness. Mrs. Lovejoy was the daughter of the late Frank and Mary Leach, and was born in Bethel, July 24, 1865, and had just passed the fortieth anniversary of her birth.

January 4, 1890, she married Davis Lovejoy, and they have since resided in Bethel. A little daughter blessed this union, but she died in March, 1904, at the age of eleven years.

Mrs. Lovejoy was in delicate health for several years, yet was a real homemaker, a devoted wife and mother. How she struggled against disease, and the brave battle for life she fought is best known to those who cared for her. Longing to live for those she loved, when the summons came, it was met fearlessly, and to the very last her one thought was for the husband who was to be left alone.

Funeral services were held at her late home, Thursday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Schoonover, pastor of the M. E. church, of which she was a member. The floral tributes were many and appropriate.

A sister and brother survive her, also the mother who came into the home while the children were young, giving them a mother's care. Much sympathy is extended to the husband who in so short a time, has been doubly bereaved in the death of his only child and wife.

Fiendish Suffering

is often caused by sores, ulcers and cancers, that eat away your skin. Wm. Bedell, of Flat Rock, Mich., says: "I have used Bucklen's Arnica Salve, for Ulcers, Sores and Cancers. It is the best healing dressing I ever found." Soothes and heals cuts, burns and scalds. 25 cents at all drug stores; guaranteed.

FEW SWEDISH RESTAURANTS

Swedes Home Loving and Too Widely Scattered to Support Them.
Few Swedish restaurants flourish in New York. They are many thousands in the city are widely scattered in little colonies throughout all of the boroughs, and few of these little groups are able to support a restaurant devoted especially to their native cooking.

One reason why it is difficult to keep distinctively Swedish restaurants going in New York is that the Swedes are domestic in their habits. Many who have not homes of their own are servants in the homes of others.

An article that is characteristic of the true Swedish restaurant is a fruit soup, usually thickened with cornstarch. A purée of apples or of pears sounds a little odd, but such purées there are, also a purée of prunes. These fruit soups are served cold, and often in summer than in winter. Even persons not accustomed to Swedish cooking profess to like the fruit soups.

In the matter of fruits and vegetables the Swedish restaurants are much like others. There is among Swedes of wealth a somewhat extravagant tradition as to the table, but most Swedish immigrants bring with them a different tradition, and the Swedish restaurants of New York do not reflect the luxury of Stockholm. Deserts, however, are of many kinds, and rice is much used in making puddings. As might be expected, only a few fruits are much used in Swedish cooking. The banana is usually a curiosity to the Swedish immigrant; he rarely sees it at home.

One berry is largely imported into this country from Sweden—the lingon, sometimes called the Swedish cranberry. It grows upon upland on a low bush and in great quantities. The berry somewhat resembles our cranberry in color, but is much smaller. These berries are cooked and barreled in their own juice for exportation. Here they are sold in glass jars by Swedish grocers and are much used in the Swedish restaurants and by Swedish families. They are served as a sauce with meats and sometimes preserved pears are mingled with them. The Swedes prefer the sharp tart of the lingon to the flavor of the cranberry.

There are no native Swedish wines.—New York Sun.

Hospitality in Mexico.

Mexican etiquette puts on the newcomer the responsibility of making all the social advances. Visitors to any principal Mexican city, whatever their rank, foreign Ministers not excepted, must in solemn print give notice to every family of any consideration resident in the municipality that they have arrived and put themselves and their homes at the disposition of the residents. Otherwise they will receive no social attention whatever. Intending visitors to that country need to be equipped with this knowledge of the customs prevailing there, and it is set forth in a recent consular report of the United States agent at Puebla, and reinforced by the authority of Mme. Calderon de la Barca, wife of the Minister of Spain to Mexico, who says that the point of etiquette involved is peculiar to that country, having no known existence elsewhere. The people are very kind and hospitable when approached in their own way, and none other is understood or taken any notice of by them.

The Mikado's Advice to Boys.

In view of the astounding progress of Japan it is interesting to recall the following rescript which was issued by the Emperor to the Japanese schools some fifteen years ago: "Be filial to your parents and affectionate to your brothers; be loving friends; conduct yourselves with modesty and be benevolent to all. Develop your intellectual faculties and perfect your moral powers by gaining knowledge and acquiring a profession. Promote public interests and advance public affairs. Ever respect the national constitution and obey the laws of the country, and, in case of necessity, courageously sacrifice yourselves to the public good." Recent events have proved that the last injunction at least was taken to heart by the youth of Japan.—Graphic.

Why the Hermit Kingdom.

Oppressed by her neighbors for centuries and overrun with war; her people decimated; her cities, her temples, and her libraries sacked and destroyed; her nobles and maidens driven off to China, and her artisans to Japan; the most ambitious and unscrupulous of her subjects constantly stirred to intrigue and conspiracy by foreign powers, it is small wonder that Korea has endeavored to shut herself off from the world, and, by becoming the "Hermit Kingdom," has effectively barred the way to all progress.—Century.

Climate in California.

Climate in California is not determined by the distance north and south, but by the distance east and west, altitude and distance from the coast. So in future California's climatic belts are to be officially known as "Mountain," "Valley" and "Coastal."

A Traveling Savings Bank.

A traveling savings bank established in the North of France is an electric motor carriage, carrying a small safe, a desk made of folding shelves for depositors, and seats for the driver, two clerks and a cashier. It journeys about the country, making short stops in the villages on stated days to receive such sums as the work folk may be desirous of saving.

FOOD VALUE OF MILK.

Contains Much Digestive Nutrients and is Cheaper Than Beef.
There are scores of users of milk who do not consider its comparative value as food. Touching this matter the American Dairyman gives some facts that will interest many. He says:

"Comparatively few use whole milk as a regular diet. If we use it, we do not do so as freely as its nutritive values and its cheapness warrant. We are content that the infant and the sick shall have it freely; but we are prone to look upon milk as a luxury for the well. This is a great mistake. It is the cheapest food pound for pound that can be used.

It contains all of the nutritive ingredients needed for food, and they are about in the right proportions for proper nutrition. These nutrients are easily and completely digested. If these facts were properly appreciated, the consumption of milk would be doubled; for it is a complete and perfect food and is very economical.

It will surprise the majority of people when they are told, that one quart of milk contains as much digestible nutrients as are contained in any one of the following:

- In 1 pound of beef chuck,
- In 1 pound of beef,
- In 1 pound of veal shoulder,
- In 1 1/2 pound of beef loin,
- In 1 1/2 pound of beef ribs,
- In 1 1/2 pound of mutton leg,
- In 9 ounces of beef round,
- In 9 ounces of veal cutlets,
- In 9 ounces of veal loin,
- In 2 pounds five ounces of solid oysters.

It takes 2 pounds 5 ounces of bluefish, or 1 pound 5 ounces of potatoes to equal 1 quart of whole milk in digestible nutrient value.

Cream Hard to Churn.

An experienced dairyman in the London Dairy refers to the trouble experienced often in churning.

In many cheese and butter dairies there are at the present time a few stale cows—animals which have been in milk for a long time, and have not dried off in early winter at the end of the milking season. After supplying the household with milk, the making of butter naturally suggests itself as a means of utilizing the surplus. Unfortunately this kind of milk is particularly difficult to handle. One may churn for hours without getting the butter to come, and the dairy maid is at her wits' end to know what to do.

There are several ways of meeting the difficulty. One of the best is to see that the cream is properly ripened (at the kitchen fire if no other place is available); that the churning is done at least twice a week, and that probably a "starter" will be required, and would help. Another matter is to introduce one or two freshly calved cows into the herd, if this can be conveniently done. The putting of fresh cream from those along with the other assists in breaking and gathering of the butter, and sometimes cures the difficulty.

The cream from newly calved cows always seem to be more easily made into butter, possibly because the fat globules are larger and more easily "broken" than the smaller ones from cows which have been a long time in use.

Growing Currants.

In the propagation of the currant the writer has succeeded in getting plants that have increased the yield from an average of three quarts to sixteen quarts to the bush.

In a current plantation of a large number of bushes were found many plants showing no productive quality, producing but one or two stems of fruit, and some producing no fruit whatever. By the side of these were found others that yielded very large, nearly every bud setting and bearing fruit.

In taking cuttings from these plants only those were selected that showed the greatest power of production and from several generations of such selection the high average yield has been obtained.

Coloring Used in Butter.

The substance called anatto, so extensively used by dairymen in coloring butter, is derived from the seeds of a Mexican plant. It is a purely vegetable product and does no harm nor does it do any good or add a whit to the value of the butter except as to looks and so far as this is concerned it might just as well be tinted with the juice of the table beet so as to look like pink icecream and still be quite as acceptable to the palate.

LINCOLN ON THE CIRCUIT.

So Fond of it He Declined a Lucrative Partnership.

Following the court about on the circuit was, no doubt, the joy of Lincoln's life. He was so fond of it that he declined a flattering offer to enter a lucrative law partnership in Chicago, because, as he contended, it would necessitate more or less confinement in the office and therefore keep him off the circuit. Seated in a one-horse buggy, behind a sorry looking animal he would set out from Springfield to be gone for weeks, at a stretch. The lawyers, as he drove late each successive place, eagerly anticipating a new stock of stories, gave him a cordial welcome, and the landlords hailed his coming with delight, for he was one of the most patient and uncomplaining of guests. "If every of my fellow," relates one of his colleagues, "grumbled at the indifferent accommodations and scant fare which greeted us at many of the dingy taverns we struck, Lincoln said nothing." His forbearance in this regard well warranted the observation he is said on one occasion to have made that he never so completely felt his "own unworthiness as when he stood face to face with a real, live hotel clerk." How he appeared on the circuit may be gleaned from this sketch of him drawn by Henry C. Whitney, one of his colleagues in central Illinois, who is yet living: "His hat was brown, faded, and the nap usually worn or rubbed off. For wore a short cloak and sometimes a shawl. His coat—no vest hung loosely on his giant frame. His trousers were invariably too short. In one hand he carried a faded green umbrella with 'A. Lincoln' in large white cotton or muslin letters sewed on the inside; the knob was made from the handle, and a piece of cord was usually tied round the middle of the umbrella to keep it from flying open. In the other hand he carried a carpet bag in which were stored the few papers to be used in court, and underclothing enough to last till his return to Springfield." The Century.

A Brief Interruption.

Looking every inch the eminent jurist Judge Clay N. Merritt, of Alabama, was at Seelbach's Hotel last night's surcharged with a fund of clever anecdotes concerning himself.

Judge Merritt was asked by a reporter for the Herald how he had acquired the facility with which he turned from one case to another. In explanation he stated that he had learned this from what he saw at a baptism of colored people when a boy.

"The weather was very cold," said Judge Merritt, "so that to immerse the candidates they were obliged to cut away the ice. It happened that when one of the female converts was dipped back into the water the cold made her squirm about and in a moment she had slipped from the preacher's hands and was down the stream under the ice.

"The preacher, however, was not disconcerted. Looking up with perfect calmness at the crowd on the bank, he said: 'Brethren, this sister hath departed—hand me down another!'"—Louisville Herald.

Frenchmen's Ways.

If the French Republic should ever be sick it will not be for want of doctors to look after its health. About one-third of the Chamber of Deputies and half the Senate is composed of practicers of the healing art. The various ministries have plenty of physicians. The recent appointment of Dr. Gastinel to the ministry of Public Instruction brings their number to sixty. The Ministry of the Interior has no fewer than four physicians. The Ministry of Public Instruction has two, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs has four, the Ministry of Finance has six, and the Ministry of Public Works seven. But the record is held by the Department of Posts and Telegraphs, for Mr. Berard, the under secretary, has at the disposal of his department no fewer than twenty-seven male doctors, two surgeons and five women doctors.

Butterflies of the Sea.

If you visit any of the seaside towns south of Cape Cod perhaps you will be so fortunate as to see a flock of sea butterflies flitting through the blue water on some fair day. You certainly will pick up some of their empty houses on the beach.

These shade from pure white, through buff, lemon, orange and coffee color to dark brown. You can make many pretty souvenirs with them. These "butterflies" are not butterflies at all, however, but are molluscs, being nothing more or less than scallops.

The "butterflies" live among the eel grass, and by rapidly opening and shutting the two halves of their shells and thus spouting out the water, they can dash swiftly through the sea.

The shells are prettily fringed, and each "butterfly" has 30 silvery blue eyes, but with all of these he can scarcely see as much as we can with our two.

How Bacon Settled Him.

A story is told of Leonard Bacon who was one of the best known theologians in New England, a quarter of a century ago. It illustrates the absurdity of a popular kind of argument. Dr. Bacon was attending a conference in one of the New England cities, and some assertions he made in his address were vehemently objected to by a member of the opposition.

"Why," he expostulated, "I never heard of such a thing in all my life." "Mr. Moderator," rejoined Bacon, calmly, "I cannot allow my opponent's ignorance, however vast, to offset my knowledge, however small."—Harper's Weekly.

He Remembered.

Jaggsby: "I didn't come home in any condition, my dear, I came home in a cab."

YOUNG FOLKS

Spirit of Reform.

I'm going to be a better boy,
Than I have ever been before,
I'm going to be a greater joy
To Ma. and love her more an' more.
I'm going to work an' never rest,
No matter how I want to play,
I'm going to do my very best—
Till after circus, anyway.

When Pa asks me if I won't run
An errand for him, even when
Th' game we're playin' ain't quite done,
I'll start off just as quick; an' then He'll be surprised I think I don't Say, "after while," an' I won't say,
"I'd rather not" or "Can't" or "won't"—
Till after circus, anyway.

No matter if the work is hard,
I'll never make a fuss at all;
I'll pile the wood an' rake the yard,
No matter if they're playin' ball;
An' when they call me in at night,
I won't stand out in front an' say,
"Oh, just a minute more!" Tain't right—
Till after circus any way.

No matter if there's lots of pie,
I won't ast for another piece,
I'll fold my napkin up when I Get done an' say: "Excuse me please!"
I'll try to keep as neat an' clean
As a boy ought to be; an' pray
Not ever to be cross an' mean—
Till after circus, anyway.

An' then when it comes Circus Day
I'll just pretend that I forget
An' when Ma looks at me I'll say,
"I didn't know it's comin' yet!"
An' then she'll sort o' smile at me
But I'll just work an' never say
A word—cuz that's th' way to be—
Till after circus, anyway.

Then maybe she'll tell Pa how I
Just worked an' how I never knew
Th' big parade was comin' by
At o'clock an' how at two
Th' big show opens; an' then he
Will take a dollar out an' say
I'm 'bout as good as boys can be—
Till after circus, anyway.

Oiwish and Dowilli.

Two Indian boys, both the sons of great warriors, were playing together in a grassy forest, opening on the Chestnut Ridge of the Alleghanies. They had made a village of tiny birch wigwams under the shade
of a flaunting cluster of May apples,
and were distributing a stock of bright pebbles among them, for hatchets, tomahawks, and other domestic and warlike utensils, when a beautiful gray squirrel, enthroned
himself upon the orange and brown
lichens of a fallen beech-trunk, and eyed them cautiously.

Oiwish, the eldest and tallest,
gazed with longing eyes upon the pretty intruder, and whispered, "My new bow and arrows? I had but brought them—what a nice bag the gray nut-thief's skin would make!
and then I would carry it down to the white camp, and make them
give me a string of beads for it, as gay as the rainbow and half as long,
too."

While he spoke, the squirrel gave a spring, and dropped dead right in the midst of their circle of wigwams, overthrowing one or two that were very light and unsteady.

Dowilli, his companion, without saying one word, had aimed a sharp pebble at the squirrel's head, and he immediately walked off as silently
with his lawful game.

A few summers afterwards, the Indian boys met in the same mountain opening, on their first hunting excursion.

Oiwish leaned against a tree, and looking down over the many-shaded green of the forest tops, down the long, long slope, at whose unseen base the valleys were buried, he said:

"Now if the big deer would only come in sight, what a place this would be to shoot from. If one would only peep out somewhere
along the opening, how quick I would bring him down! I wish I could see some eyes shining through the underbrush. There isn't a finer spot in the mountains for a deer to die on, than this."

Dowilli only stopped long enough to say in a low tone, "Ugh! wishing don't kill the big deer!" and darted
off through the woods on a fresh trail.

There was a sudden crash among the bushes, and before Oiwish had left his "wishing post" by the tree,
the young hunter returned, dragging
behind him a stately buck.

"Mahitou sharpens Dowilli's arrows," murmured Oiwish, "I wish he would sharpen mine."

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would
Have Killed Many a Person,
But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills
cured them of distressing and dangerous
kidney and bladder troubles.

Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines
to cure my kidneys. I do not think that
any man ever suffered as I did and lived.
The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep
at night. I could not ride
a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills.
I used three boxes and they cured me.
Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address: Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

Again the two boys met, now grown into strong hunters, but this time their meeting was on the shore
of one of the great lakes.

The white men had thinned away
the game around their old encampments, and the Indians had agreed to leave them, and to make him who should discover better hunting grounds than those forsook, one of the fathers of the tribe.

Oiwish gazed away into the rosy
haze which hung over all the green
islands and rocky shores, frequently
saying to himself:

"Now if I had but wings—or if I could only get some great medicine
to change my eyes into two young eagles, that would fly across the water and come back to tell me
where the beautiful hunting grounds
are, then—O I wish I could be one of the wise men and a leader of the tribe!"

Meanwhile Dowilli had been among the birch-trees, had made aim a canoe, had cut some strong paddles and was far out of sight, on the waters of the lake.

Presently a cloud of smoke arose
from behind a distant bluff, and a loud joyful whoop rent the air. It was the smoke of a new council fire,
and the shout of acclaim by which the honor of the wisest man was given to Dowilli, for he had found the good hunting grounds, and led
the tribe there by a shorter trail,
while Oiwish walked up and down
the shore, wishing for wings.

Oiwish and Dowilli are not dead
yet, or at least their spirits seem to have been trans-migrated into the forms of some American boys, who are not Indians.—Sel.

DOCTORS NOT IMMUNE.

Now the doctors plainly say
That the microbes come from thinking;

Come from kisses, night or day,
Come from eating and from drinking;

Come from breathing dust, as well,
Come from fruit and come from candy;

Come from butter—taste or smell—
Come from sugar pure or sandy.

Come from sales of rummage, too,
Come from wool and come from
kersey;

Come from files and bees and stew,
Come from skeeters bred in Jersey.

Come, they say from breathing air
Which is always 'round us flying.
Doctors better have a care—
Maybe microbes come from lying.

"Excuse me," replied Miss Cutting.

They Do Cut a Figure.

"You talk about women being so smart," said Smithers, "but I notice
they don't cut much of a figure in finance."

"Humph, have you ever heard of any man any sharper than Hetty Green?"
asked Mrs. Smithers.

"Oh, she's an isolated case. But a woman in a financial institution, except as a stenographer, is an exception.
The day will come when women
will be employed in the banks."

His Question.

At an examination in an English school the teacher was so pleased with the class that he said they could ask him any question they liked.

Some were asked and replied to.
Seeing one little fellow in deep thought, the teacher asked him a question. The boy answered, with a grave face:

"Please, sir, if you was in a soft mudheap up to your neck and I was to throw a brick at your head, would you duck?"

The answer is not recorded.—Tid-

Good Roads and Auto.

Whatever the reputation for recklessness and disregard for the rights of the road which many automobile
drivers or chauffeurs have acquired, the advent of the big car is undoubtedly exerting a strong influence favorable to good roads an increasing influence which may be exerted powerfully when the time becomes ripe for legislative assistance.
An interesting experience is related to me of roads and country ways by Mr. Whitman Osgood, of Washington, who, with his wife, two children and a chauffeur made a round trip to St. Louis in his Oldsmobile.
They went by the famous old National road passing through Hagerstown, Maryland; Bedford, Pennsylvania; Pittsburg, Zanesville, Columbus, Indianapolis, Terre Haute,
etc.

"The roads in Maryland were very good," said Mr. Osgood, "even in the mountains. In Pennsylvania
they were bad and in West Virginia
they were bad. In Ohio the roads got better, especially around Columbus, where for seventy miles they are as level and smooth as a floor.
In Indiana they were fair, but in Illinois and Missouri, well, the next time I go over those roads it will be with a flying machine. They were simply fearful. We had no bad weather."

"I never knew before what an excellent index to the character of people are the roads which cut through the country. Where there were good roads there were good farms;
where the roads were poor, the farms
were poor, and the farmers
looked shiftless and devoid of energy and ambition. We found it difficult to get proper food in some of the country districts, the farmers
sending all their products immediately to the markets."

Had you the treasure to exceed
The splendor of a sultan's dream,
You might not claim in sordid greed
To own a single glittering beam.

It is only by taking a cheerful and contented view of the world around,
that you can acquire and maintain that beauty of expression which is the indelible mark of self-control and education.

The gospel of happiness is one that every woman should lay to heart. What it means to a man to come home at night to a cheerful wife no one but he who has had to fight the hard battle of life knows.

If he is prosperous it is an added
joy; but it is in misfortune that it shines like a star in the darkness.
A complaining wife can kill the last bit of hope and courage in a sorely troubled heart, while a cheerful one gives new courage to begin the fight
over again.

Meet your neighbor with a smile,
have a pleasant "good day" for him
as you pass, and the world will be brighter for you both. No matter how discouraging your condition in life, or how dark and gloomy, it could be worse, and there are thousands considerably worse off than you; then why sulk or be sad? Try to look happy and cheerful, aid
others to do the same, and you will better fill your mission on earth and
be more missed when you are gone.

Just to be good, to keep life pure
from degrading elements, to make it constantly helpful in little ways to those who are touched by it, to keep one's spirit always sweet and avoid all petty anger and irritability—that is an idea as noble as it is difficult.

To illustrate: The breakfast was ready but the hope of the family was not; the sister home from boarding school called from the foot of the stairs: "Willie, the Orient is ablaze
and our morning reflections await your presence." No reply being heard the mother takes her place
and calls: "William, you lazy dogskin,
get up this minute and come to breakfast." And still there was no answer where upon the man stepped to the foot of the stairs and merely said "Bill!" "Coming, Sir!" was the instant response and in three minutes
a united family sat at the table.

The Simple Life.

It is a good thing for every woman, once in a while, to sit in judgment upon her daily life, and ask herself if she is giving her time
and thought to the things that are really worth while, the things that are broadening and uplifting and satisfying, and the things that make for the best interest of the home and come life. If she is not she is simply wasting her life in playing to awns.

Shall we strive for social position
at the cost of a quiet and peaceful homelife? Shall we regulate our lives by what people say, try to do something we are not fitted to do, or live
as we are not able to live, simply to
and favor in the eyes of the world?

Shall we wear clothes that we are not able to wear or make a show
of our home at the expense of our peace of mind, and shall we wear ourselves to a frazzle mentally and physically, striving to keep up with the procession, when the opinion of the procession, really has no bearing upon the things in our individual lives that are really worth while? Shall we set out to right all the wrongs of humanity and reform
the world to the neglect of our own homes and the simple duties that lie

Doctor Brigham Says

MANY PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBE
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womanhood is not because it is a stimulant, but because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructer ever discovered to act directly upon the generative organs, positively curing disease and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures and physicians who have recognized the virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due.

If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience it can be relied upon to effect a cure. The following letter proves it.

Dr. S. C. Brigham, of 4 Brigham Park, Fitchburg, Mass., writes: "It gives me great pleasure to say that I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very efficacious, and often prescribe it in my practice for female difficulties."

"My oldest daughter found it very beneficial for uterine trouble some time ago, and my youngest daughter is now taking it for a female weakness, and is surely gaining in health and strength."

"I freely advocate it as a most reliable specific in all diseases to which women are subject, and give it honest endorsement."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. No living person has had the benefit of a wider experience in treating female ills. She has guided thousands to health. Every suffering woman should ask for and follow her advice if she wants to be strong and well.

close at hand? Or shall we look closer within our own four walls where we may find a greater need than any which lies beyond?

Do you say this is the gospel of narrow living? It is not, for this very simplicity is the open door through which we may pass to the realm of reading and self-culture and a broader and higher life.

To make our lives quiet and simple and honest and wholesome, this is the true secret of the way of the simple life. It is the over-doing in our daily lives and the over-crowding of our rooms with useless and often unbecoming bric-a-brac, the desire to outshine our neighbor in our dress and the craze for social distinction which destroys the simplicity of our lives and crowds out the things which are really worth while—the peace and serenity and happiness which is a benediction in the home and the sign and seal of a perfect and symmetrical life.

Sick Headache.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and to-day weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. Director Chapman is enthusiastic over the outlook for the great festival in October, the Bangor festival the 5th, 6th, 7th, and the Portland festival the 9th, 10th, and 11th. "It will not be 24 hours after the Emma Eames tickets are put on sale before every one of them will be gone," said Professor Chapman confidently. "She has not been in the State for 18 years, and it has taken a concert tour with a guaranty of $100,000 to keep her out of opera this year. We are paying her $5,000 for singing in Maine, and she will be heard this year from Bangor to Portland, Oregon."

HER HUSBAND'S REVENGE.

He was determined. It was a desperate step, but his mind was made up.

"I shall stay at home today and attend to the household affairs," he said. Naturally she was startled. "What shall I do?" she asked.

"You may go down to the office," he replied, "and hold down my desk for a day. You have told me so much about my business at various times that there can be no doubt as to your ability to do it."

"But you—what do you know about household matters?" she asked.

"Everything," he replied, promptly. "You don't think that I know anything about them, while you have all the details of my business at your tongue's end, but I want to convince you that the reverse is true. You go to the office, open my desk and go to work. If you are in doubt about anything one of the clerks will explain it to you, but, of course, you won't need any help."

She felt that he was sarcastic, but she was convinced that she could do his work better than he could do hers, anyway. So she started.

He laughed softly to himself after she was gone and then went to the window and looked anxiously up and down the street.

"It seems hardly possible that I can fall now," he said to himself. "Some time during the day the chance surely will come to me."

Then he rang for the cook and told her to order whatever she wished for lunch and dinner and not to bother him with any questions about it.

"But if a pedler of any description calls," he added, "be sure to let me know. I want to see him."

Then he settled himself by the window with a morning paper and waited, ever and anon anxiously glancing out of the window. He grew nervous as the day wore on, but shortly after lunch the glad summons came. The cook informed him that there was a pedler at the back door.

"What kind of a pedler?" he asked. "One of the kind that wants to trade all sorts of things for old clothes, but will pay cash for them if he has to," was the reply.

"Bring him in."

They were closeted together for nearly an hour, after which the pedler went away with a large bundle, while the man remained and chuckled and laughed until it seemed as if he had gone crazy.

"Revenge at last!" he cried aloud. "The tables are turned and now she will know how it seems herself."

For he had traded off two of her old gowns for two jars of jam and a potato parer, even as she had been in the habit of trading off anything in the line of masculine apparel that he neglected to wear for a week.—New York Press.

IT WAS THE MOON'S FAULT.

A May Fiver Romance.

"Will you be mine?" the lover cried. (They sat beneath a maple tree.)
And bashfully the maid replied,
"Oh, Archibald! Kerchig! Kerchig!"

"I've loved you long," he wildly said,
"My heart doth ever beat for you."
The maiden shyly bowed her head
And softly murmured, "Ah, Kerchig!"

"Oh, say, beseeched the ardent swain,
"If you will share my cottage snug?"
The damsel bent her head again
And cooily whispered, "Woo! Kerchig!"

"I love you, too," she cried "my own!
And I will share your humble roof."
The youth replied in burning tone,
"Oh, ecstasy! Kerchig! Ah-whoof!"

The birds looked down upon the scene,
The asters nodded in the breeze:
"An' so they plighted troth, I wot."
And sealed it with a mighty sneeze.

His Belief.

"Do you believe that marriage is a lottery?" she asked.
"Yes," he replied, "and I also believe that every woman is anxious to take one or more chances."

Was in Poor Health for Years.

Ira W. Kelley, of Mansfield, Pa., writes: "I was in poor health for two years, suffering from kidney and bladder trouble, and spent considerable money consulting physicians without obtaining any marked benefit, but was cured by Foley's Kidney Cure, and I desire to add my testimony that it may be the cause of restoring the health of others." An Evening at Kellogg's Nature Camp.

Announcement was made at church on July 23, that a sale of fancy articles and ice cream would be held on the following Thursday evening at Kellogg's Nature Camp, North Newry, for the benefit of the church of that place, and a cordial invitation was extended to all.

That our people appreciated the kindly efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg and their summer guests was shown by the large company present. Many who had not visited the camp, previously, took this opportunity and all found the large log building a most unique place for a social gathering. The rustic building itself presented a most pleasing appearance and the brilliant bonfire outside seemed to blend with the merry hearts and voices in and around the camp.

After disposing of the articles on sale, Mrs. Kellogg favored us with some of her usual pleasing solos, and later, followed merry songs by a chorus of voices. The company broke up at 10:30 o'clock feeling very grateful for the pleasant evening which resulted in a great success financially, due largely to the guests of Kellogg's Camp and to those of Poplar Hotel. The proceeds amounted to fifty dollars.

TRUE'S ELIXIR

HELP WANTED.

I want to hire a large number of girls, boys and women to pick raspberries. These will be ready to pick about July 25 and last about four weeks. I shall have a large crop and pay good prices. Board furnished at $2.00 per week. I will make it $1.75 to all who stay with me through the whole of the berry season. I can provide rooms and tents for a few parties who may prefer to camp and board themselves. To those who can only come for a days work occasionally I will say that we nearly always need extra help the day after a rain storm and on Friday, Sunday and Monday. I can do little or no picking Saturday as I cannot market the berries. Extra pay for Sunday work. Thanking all for past favors in helping me out after stormy weather and at other times, I am

Sincerely yours,
H. E. MAXIM,

It Had Been Worse.

A clerk in a fur store stood in the entrance to the shop. The day was blistering. He fanned himself vigorously.

"Don't like to look at the furs this sort of weather, do you?" asked a man in passing.

"I should say not," exclaimed the clerk. "Always makes me feel as if I had them on."

"I don't ever like to look in the windows at the display," acknowledged the man. "Been here long?"

"Last winter I worked for an ice cream man," said the clerk. "Chicago Tribune."

Pointedly Put.

The Emerson centenary, which so many intelligent communities all over America honored, furnished many interesting incidents, among them this: "Yes, I've heard a great deal about Ralph Waldo Emerson," said a matter-of-fact person, "but to my mind he was merely an essayist. What did he ever do?" "What did he ever do?" echoed an admirer of the philosopher. "What did Ralph Waldo Emerson ever do? My dear sir, he didn't have to do anything! He was!"

CASTORIA.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

WAR BALLOONS.

Big Workshop Established by the British at Aldershot.

The utility of war balloons was early made manifest to the British, and accordingly the factory at Aldershot, which we are about to describe, was established under the supervision of Lieut.-Col. Templer, an officer of engineers, who is recognized in all the armics of the world as one of the foremost authorities on military aerostatics.

Col. Templer is always pleased to have an opportunity of showing his splendidly equipped factory; and the very first department into which he ushers the visitor is that in which long lines of girls are sewing together sections of gold beaters' skin, out of which the envelopes of the balloons are made.

The workshops are all wonderfully interesting. There is one for the weaving and testing of the vast network of cordage that confines the envelope of the balloon; another for the construction of the wicker cars of all sizes; a third for brass turning, and so on.

When all the departments of the balloon factories have done their part toward forming one of these monsters, these parts are rapidly put together in a shed or barn of great height and spaciousness. The enormous cover is laid on the floor, the bewildering area of cordage laid over it, and then the center of the envelope is hoisted to the roof and work begun on the lower part of the huge machine. Usually at this stage a wagonload of tubes of gas arrives from the chemical department, and a preliminary filling is begun to see whether the skins leak at all at the joinings.

Wagonloads of these tubes accompany every military balloon in the field, whether it be of the "free" or "captive" variety. In connection with the factory, too, there are schools of military photography and cartography, and in these branches of military science young officers qualify themselves for special service.—Harper's Weekly.

Czar's Influence at Court.

Socially, of course, the rule of the court is absolute; yet the influence of the czar upon the life of his capital is trivial, says Percival Gibbon in McClure's. His officers copy his beard, as the mild German clerk duplicates the ambitious mustache of the kaiser; but in regard to manners and morals, Nicholas is as little effectual as any of the priests about him. King Edward has helped to set the fashion of good form. Nicholas' opinion on points of behavior is unascertained.

Tolerance is a poor word to ascribe to St. Petersburg society, just as vice is a false one. Vice implies a deterioration, a deflection into lower paths, but the uncleanliness of Russian society has so broad a quality of naivete, is so evidently an evidence of the non-attainment of western standards and the instinctive leaning toward the looser codes of the Orient, that one hesitates to attribute it to a deliberate descent. However, whatever its nature, a certain instability of morals rules riotously; and it is significant that one of the czar's nicknames is "the little married man," or "the little family man." The Russian phrase is capable of both meanings and carries just that taint of contemptuous patronage which has come to be understood in the world bourgeoisie.

Marriage in Russia, or monogamy at least, has still somewhat the air of an importation. * * * And thus it is in the midst of a kind of sensual putrefaction, in an atmosphere of moral irresponsibility, that Nicholas lives his little, blameless life.

Elevators at 6 Cents a Trip.

In one of the newest skyscrapers, where the elevators are run by electricity, score cards are hung in each car. The man in charge of the car marks off each trip. If he fails to do so he is liable to be called to account at the end of the day, for a small instrument on the side of the car records the amount of electric force expended during the day as accurately as a cash register marks up a purchase—that is, it has so far, for the elevator register is a new device. There are four cars in the building, two running to the fourteenth and one each to the sixteenth and eighteenth floors. The instruments show that each elevator travels an average of ten miles a day and that each trip costs the company an average of 6 cents.

New Sea Sounding Device.

A Norwegian engineer has recently invented a new apparatus for sea sounding by which it is not necessary to touch bottom. This is accomplished by an acoustic method. The depths are also registered graphically upon a revolving drum. The operation of the device depends upon the time which sound takes to travel to the bottom and return, and the measurement of the time thus gives the depth to which the exploring apparatus is lowered.

Costs of War.

Herr Renaud, a colonel in the German army and a military and financial expert, has compiled some sensational estimates of the cost of war between two great European powers, Germany, he says, would be able to mobilize 4,000,000 trained soldiers and 6,000,000 partially drilled men, and they would cost the empire 3,500,000 pounds daily. A war between two powers would cost not less than 6,000,000 pounds daily.

LIVE STOCK

SCAB IN SHEEP.

Unhealthy Localities, Damp Climate, Poorly Ventilated Sheds.

Common scab is exceedingly contagious from one sheep to another, and may in some cases show itself within about a week after healthy sheep have been exposed to infection. The contagion may be direct, or indirect, from tags of wool, or from fences, posts, etc., against which scabby sheep have rubbed, or from places where the sheep have been "bedded down." If untreated the sheep may die in two or three months. Hygienic conditions, good food, and cool dry atmosphere tend to check the disease.

Taken from the sheep, the parasites possess a remarkable vitality. It is generally stated that, kept at a moderate temperature on portions of scab, the adults may live from four to twenty days, but they will occasionally live much longer.

Scabby sheep should never be driven upon a public road; sheds in which scabby sheep have been kept should be thoroughly cleaned, disinfected, and aired, and should be left unused for at least four weeks (better two months) before clean sheep are placed in them; fields in which scabby sheep

have been kept should stand vacant at least four weeks (better six or eight) before being used for clean sheep; a drenching rain will frequently serve to disinfect a pasture, but it is well to whitewash the posts against which the scabby sheep have rubbed.

The most rational and satisfactory and the cheapest method of curing scab is by dipping the sheep in some liquid which will kill the parasites.

Select a dip containing sulphur. Shear all the sheep at one time, and immediately after shearing confine them to one-half the farm for two to four weeks. At the end of this time dip every sheep (and every goat also, if there are any on the farm.) Ten days later dip the entire flock a second time. After the second dipping, place the flock on a portion of the farm from which they have been excluded during the previous four or five weeks. Use the dip at a temperature of 100 to 110 degrees Fahrenheit.

Importance of Good Stock.

"The introduction of choice blood of any standing beef breed into the cattle of any section means economy of feed and far better results in weight and quality of the beef productions of that section when ready for market. It is a process that permits marketing prime beef cattle a year, or even two years, earlier than the old-fashioned methods. It is a money-making business proposition that no set of progressive farmers should fail to take advantage of at once. Every year that the use of inferior or ordinary breeding stock is continued is time, feed and money lost. The increased demand for high-bred stock will come, and with it prices must advance. The fortunate man will be he who clears his farm of inferior stock and establishes himself well with a herd of good blood at the favorable prices now prevailing."

Sowing Grass Seed.

The amount of grass seed to sow on an acre is regulated by more or less well-defined rules, based upon general experience and varying somewhat locally. Thus, it is said that three bushels of an acre should be planted of red-top, orchard-grass, and English rye grass; one-half to one bushel of timothy; and fifteen to twenty-five pounds of alfalfa. These rules, however, do not take into consideration the quality of seed used. Assuming for example, that three bushels of first quality seed is meant, then an increased amount should be sown when inferior seed is used.

Effects of Freezing.

In overcoming the injurious effects of winter freezing the author found that moderate pruning, good culture, plenty of fertilizer, and a close watch on insect pests were the best tonics for a frozen tree. Trees at high elevations suffered less than those in low places. Trees having a general exposure were less affected than those in sunny, sheltered pockets. It was found that moisture in the bark of the trees during the first few warm days of early spring indicated life in the stem or roots.

A SNAIL FARM.

A Singular Industry—Largest Snail Farm in France.

Snail farming will no doubt strike readers as a very singular industry, and probably many will now learn for the first time of its existence. But to appease the quaint taste of the French for the slimy mollusk there are hundreds of farms dotted all over France where snails, and nothing but snails, are farmed in their millions, much as poultry and cattle are farmed elsewhere. Indeed, so great is the demand for snails in France—Paris alone eats ten tons in a year, representing about 200,000,000 snails—that farms have been established in Germany, Switzerland and Italy.

One of the largest snail farms in France is situated at Orgelet, in Jura, where one gazes over a vast expanse of what looked like innumerable boxes ranged in rows across a ten-acre cabbage field. There were hundreds of these boxes, each measuring six feet in length by three in width. A distance of a yard separated them one from another, while there was a space of two yards dividing the rows. So it will be seen that of the total area the boxes occupied just one-half. They were the cradles of the growing snails, which, though not visible at the moment, were there in their millions, for a family of 2,000 occupied each box.

Examination of the boxlike erections proved they were not really boxes, but shelters with wooden sides and roofs. Inside the earth was covered with a bed of hone-dry moss, wherein the snails reposed from the heat and glare of the sun during the day, emerging only at night to feed. They feed to some purpose, too, for in wet weather a hundred thousand of them will demolish in a single night a market wagon load of cabbages that two horses could not easily pull.

As they have to be maintained from three to four years before they attain a salable size at good prices, it naturally follows that to cover the expense of their keep and the pay of the farm house they need realize good prices when they are sent to the market. Commercially, there are two kinds of snails—a large, whitish breed known as Gros Blanc, and a smaller one, having a dark shell, known as the Petit Gris. They are sold by the thousand, and prices fluctuate according to season.

Snail collecting gives employment to thousands of people living in the neighborhood of the farms, and whole families engage in it, earning a good living. The collectors—men, women and children—set out at daybreak, carrying big baskets and iron hooks. They search along the foot of hedge rows and under the ivy covering trees and walls. With good luck a good collector can secure from 1,000 to 1,500 snails a day, which means a weight of from 20 to 30 pounds. This earns about $1.25 a day, which is good for these localities.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Queer People.

A queer people to American boys and girls seem the natives of the Arctic regions, called Eskimos, with their short, squat figures, broad fat faces and straight black locks. And even more queer than the people themselves is the life they lead; nothing but hunting and fishing, skimming through the water in their swift kayaks, canoes made of skin, or flying over the snow and ice in sledges drawn by dogs; then, when weary of these, creeping on hands and knees through the hole which serves as doorway to their huts, and rolling themselves up in furs for a doze. The summer dwelling of the Eskimo is usually a tent of sealskin; his winter abode may be a hut of wood, or more often of stones and moss, banked about with snow. Sometimes when traveling from place to place he builds a temporary dwelling of blocks of snow. That sounds very inviting for a hot summer's day, but most of us would not think it the pleasantest kind of a home when the thermometer had left the zero mark and gone so far below that nobody could find it.

Fine clothes or styles do not trouble the Eskimos at all; men and women alike wear high boots, trousers and a jacket with a hood which can be drawn up over the head. Their clothing is made of furs and skins of birds. These simple minded people, in spite of their dull lives, are naturally cheerful and happy and manage to get as much pleasure in their way out of life as do the majority of people. They are almost invariably kind and friendly to strangers and scarcely know the meaning of warfare.

Feared the Worst.

Friday Vizer, a familiar negro about town in a certain part of Mississippi, had been found dead, and he being a member of no church or lodge—very unusual for a negro—there was no one to pray for his soul in the great beyond. A few old intimates, however, carried the body to the cemetery in a rude pine coffin, and Bob McRaven, one of the number, an old "befo-de-wah darkey," was called upon for a few remarks. Bob removed his hat and stepped reverently and sadly toward the open grave, and in solemn funeral tones said:

"Friday Vizer, you is gone. We hopes you is gone whar we spects you ain't."—Lippincott's Magazine.
